London Hears Reds May Lift Berlin Block

Paper Says Soviet General Enroute To U.S. For Talks

LONDON, April 18—A London newspaper reported today that Russia has sent a Soviet general to the United States with a proposal seeking to end the Berlin blockade.

The Daily Mail, in a Berlin dispatch, identified the Soviet envoy as Gen. Georgi V. Malinin, former Soviet deputy chief of staff in Germany.

It was stated the proposal may call for United Nations—rather than four-power—control of Berlin.

The newspaper credited unidentified German sources for

PULLMAN, Wash., April 18—Five men were counted dead today and three others injured after a berserk businessman raged this quiet college town with a high-powered rifle for two hours Easter Sunday.

The quintuple killings began when Pullman Police Officer Ross Claar attempted to arrest an electric store operator, George McIntyre, 30.

Before the shooting ended with the death of McIntyre at the hands of a posse, he had killed Claar, Sheriff David Parnell and Deputy Gilbert Gallagher of Whitman County, and one of the posse, Ernie Buck, a teacher operator. Three other men were wounded.

Meantime, 5,000 residents of the little city in Eastern Washington's Palouse Hills were terrorized.

Gun battles raged near buildings housing veterans' families at Washington State college.

Frantic mothers pulled their children, playing outside, to the safety of their homes. Many college students were out of town for the holidays but some veterans joined in the hunt for the killer.

McINTYRE FINALLY was trapped and slain in a ditch beside the Great Northern Railroad tracks, but not before he fatally wounded Sheriff Parnell, Deputy Gallagher and Buck in the running gun battle after he killed Claar.

Pullman Chief of Police Art Ricketts said he had sent officer Claar to question McIntyre concerning a brawl in which W. H. Kershaw, a dairy owner, was slashed with a knife.

Ricketts said McIntyre "went crazy," shooting the unarmed officer three times with his .22 revolver and then beating him over the head with the policeman's own patrol club.

WASHINGTON, April 18—The National Education Association recommended today that public schools teach more about American relations with Russia and other countries of the world.

The organization also urged that greater emphasis be placed on school debate of such controversial issues as Communism and civil rights to "bring the student up to date."

These were the highlights of NEA's latest annual report and statements made by top association spokesmen.

In addition, the NEA:

Tax-Hike Program May Be Shelved

Congress Seen Giving Priority To Changing Revenue Rulings

WASHINGTON, April 18—Congress may shelve President Truman's tax increase program and limit itself this year to legislative making administrative changes in the nation's tax laws.

A move is underway in the House Ways and Means Committee to give priority to a long-standing Treasury Department request for revision of the tax laws.

If the committee agrees to this, the President's request for a $4 billion tax increase will be postponed for the remainder of the session, unless Mr. Truman recalls Congress later in the year.

If the committee decides to tackle tax law revision instead of a tax revenue raising measure, it may bring out a bill cutting levies slightly instead of increasing them.

The committee will not make a decision until possibly late in May or early in June. The decision on what kind of tax legislation to tackle will come after the committee and the House have completed action on Social Security legislation.

THE HOUSE group initiates all tax legislation in Congress. It has set April 23 as the termination date for its lengthy hearings on the President's broadened Social Security program. It is anticipated that it will be at least a month after that before the committee and the House dispose of the legislation.

There has been no revision in the tax laws since 1942. Last year, when the Republicans were in control, the committee approved and the House passed a tax revision bill. The measure did not reduce tax rates, but it did cut revenue by approximately $400 million. The Senate failed to act.

The Republican tax revision bill contained approximately 80 changes in the Internal Revenue code.

According to its sponsor, former Rep. Knutson of Minn., the purpose was to correct tax inequities and to further administration of the tax laws. The bill

NAM Hits Tobin For 'Lobbying' For Labor Bill

WASHINGTON, April 18—Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin was accused today of lobbying in behalf of the administration's Taft-Hartley repeal bill in violation of a 30-year-old section of the U. S. criminal code.

The National Association of Manufacturers, which made the charge, suggested that the cabinet member's activities may be a cause for his removal from office.

The NAM charges are based on Tobin's statement to a news conference that he and his aides have polled practically every member of Congress on the labor bill and are confident it will be enacted.

Some Legislators May Play Hookey

COLUMBUS, April 18—Baseball—the season opener tomorrow in Cincinnati—shared legislative interest today with colored oleomargarine, FEPC and increased jobless pay benefits as the Ohio General Assembly begins its 16th week.

The house last Thursday refused to go along with a senate proposal that the lawmakers adjourn until Wednesday to permit members to go to the game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals.

As a result, sessions had to be scheduled for tonight, since neither house may adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other.

The calendar committees, however, were wise enough to know that many members will play hookey anyway, so that nothing of a highly-controversial nature is scheduled for either tonight or Tuesday.

The senate will take up—if it has a quorum—the Blake mine safety bill and the measure repealing the requirement that fishing licenses be visibly worn, but neither is hotly contested.

THE FIGHT over the baseball adjournment proposal stirred up plenty of ill feeling—so much so, in fact, that it is probable that the colored oleo bill, originally on Wednesday's tentative calendar, will be postponed until next week to permit tempers to cool.

It is also possible that a "call of the house"—the fancy name for a count of noses—may be demanded tonight or tomorrow, or both, to see who the baseball hookey players are.

The law provides a fine of $20 a day against legislators who are absent without justification. (Continued on Page Two)

Exposure Cited In Death Of Native's Child

A verdict of "death by over-exposure" was issued Monday in connection with the death of three-year-old Sandy Robison, daughter of a missing Circleville native.

The pretty, blonde youngster was discovered dead in a field three-quarters of a mile from her farm-home near Springfield by a posse of citizens Sunday afternoon.

Assistant Coroner George Ingling of Clark County said the child died of overexposure. Officials of the county believe there was no foul play connected with her death, but opined she had strayed from her farm and had become lost.

The girl was the daughter of William Robison, 33, formerly of Circleville, who is being searched for throughout the midwest after his disappearance three weeks ago.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Monday he had contacted Robison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Robison, here on Barnes avenue, but that they had heard nothing of their son since his disappearance.

Communist leaders announced that Acting President Li Tsung-Jen will be given only three days in which to accede to peace demands.

Nevertheless, it was generally speaking a hopeful, thankful note that the Easter bells pealed out this fourth year after World War II.

In Berlin, symbol of the East-West cold war, bombed-out churches were well filled with worshippers in both Russian and Allied-occupied sectors of the divided city.

Britain's King George took the occasion to attend services outside a royal residence for the first time since his leg operation. Walking without a cane, he went to Easter ceremonies at the royal chapel in Windsor Park.

Here in the United States, President Truman and his family observed the day solemnly and quietly. The chief executive attended church

WIFE LOOKS ON IN HORROR

Another 'Bloody Harlan' Police Officer Is Killed

SHIELDS, Ky., April 18—"Bloody Harlan" County lost another police officer Easter Sunday when Capt. Ambrose Metcalfe was shot to death by a speeder while his wife looked on in horror.

Two men were arrested here a few hours after the fatal shooting and a Harlan County official said they were booked on murder charges.

The dead officer was the 29-year-old chief of the Harlan County police patrol.

Officials said he died en route to Harlan hospital. He was struck by five bullets fired by one of the occupants of a speeding car he had stopped. Metcalfe was out for an Easter drive with his wife, Kathleen, and their two-year-old baby when the auto zoomed past the officer's car.

Fielding Hensley, Harlan County jailer, said Metcalfe's alleged assailants, Arthur Jackson and Ford Sizemore, are in Bell County jail in Pineville.

SHIELDS is about five miles east of Evans, known as one of "Bloody Harlan's" sore spots. Evans, on April 6, signed up its seventh police chief since last August.

Metcalfe, state police said, gave chase to the speeding car and overtook it in this coal mining town. The shooting allegedly took place before Jackson's cafe.

The police officer was wounded near the heart by one bullet. The other shots struck him in the right side, right leg and left hand.

The slain police officer was an ex-soldier who once rescued the late Ernie Pyle, war correspondent, on a North African battlefield.

Metcalfe was named by County Judge W. J. R. Howard to head the county's first police patrol several years ago. He had enforced vice and liquor laws. The county is legally dry. Jackson recently was acquitted by a (Continued on Page Two)

Kolarov Given Bulgarian Post

SOFIA, April 18—Bulgarian Foreign Minister Vassil P. Kolarov has taken over as premier for ailing Georgi Dimitrov.

The Bulgarian government announced Kolarov's new duties in the wake of considerable speculation over Dimitrov, veteran Moscow-trained Communist who is recuperating in the Soviet Union.

When Dimitrov's "temporary" retirement was announced last week there was speculation in Western European capitals that he might be in disfavor with Moscow. Bulgarian statements discounted these rumors, however.

National Solons Won't Miss Game

WASHINGTON, April 18—President Truman, a Missouri veteran who pitched a great election upset last November, tosses out the first ball today to open officially the 1949 baseball season.

The President delivers the opening pitch in the inaugural between the Washington Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics in Griffith Stadium here where a sell-out crowd of 31,000 is assured.

Mr. Truman maintained the surprise element of the last election by keeping his own counsel regarding which hand he will use to propel the first ball.

Normally a southpaw, Mr. Truman last year shattered precedent by firing two opening balls, one with each hand.

After the ceremonies, the President will turn the pitching duties over to two players who are not as ambidextrous and pitch only with their right arms.

Ray Scarborough has been selected to take the mound for the Washington team while Dick Fowler will hurl for the Athletics.

MR. TRUMAN has made it known that he will be rooting for the Washington club whom he has never seen win an opening game in his term as President.

The President will be joined at the ball park by official Washington. The House is on a 10-day Easter holiday. The Senate, after once-over-lightly of the housing bill will quit in plenty of time to get to the ballyard for the opening pitch.

There was a possibility that the spirit of the day might be dampened.

The Weather Bureau said it expected an all-night rain to end soon, but said an occasional brief shower is possible this afternoon.

There was no indication that the game would be called off, however.

'Lonely Hearts' Slaying Held To Mother, 2 Sons

DOVER, Del., April 18—Delaware state police read through scores of "love letters" today to determine the fate of "lonely hearts" suitors who came in contact with Mrs. Inez Brennan, 45-year-old widow, and her two sons.

They took up the trail after discovering the killing of Wade N. Woolridge, 70-year-old suitor, who was blasted with a shotgun on the Brennan farm near here last October, and then buried in a pig pen.

Police said Mrs. Brennan's son Robert, 15, confessed killing Woolridge "at his mother's wish" and then digging the body up again and burning it in an oil drum, with the aid of his brother, Raymond, 23. The remains were then stuffed in cans and scattered in a city dump.

Robert and Mrs. Brennan were charged with murder, and Raymond was held as an accessory.

Meanwhile, a bundle of lavender-ribboned "lonely hearts" letters held the attention of police. They reported their records show that Hugo Schultz, 60, of Concord, N. H., another of Mrs. Brennan's lonely hearts suitors, is still missing. He disappeared during a visit by Mrs. Brennan and her sons five months ago in Concord.

Detectives from Berlin, N. J., also arrived to question Mrs. Brennan in the drowning of Mrs. Nettie Henderson Phillips, 72-year-old invalid pensioner in Laurel Lake, N. J., in 1947. Mrs. Brennan then lived in Lindenwood, N. J., as a "neighbor and closest friend" of Mrs. Phillips.

London Hears Reds May Lift Berlin Block

Paper Says Soviet General Enroute To U.S. For Talks

LONDON, April 18—A London newspaper reported today that Russia has sent a Soviet general to the United States with a proposal seeking to end the Berlin blockade.

The Daily Mail, in a Berlin dispatch, identified the Soviet envoy as Gen. Georgi V. Malinin, former Soviet deputy chief of staff in Germany.

It was stated the proposal may call for United Nations—rather than four-power—control of Berlin.

The newspaper credited unidentified German sources for the report, which it said has not been confirmed by either American or British authorities.

GERMANS IN THE Soviet zone reportedly are pressuring Soviet authorities to lift the Berlin blockade because the international impasse over the former German capital has brought about disastrous economic consequences.

A British army paper reported that Germans in the eastern zone want to resume trade with West Germany and have put the heat on the Soviets to resume normal relations.

The heads of the German railroad in East Germany are also said to have warned that the transportation system will be bankrupt unless trade between the two parts of the nation are resumed.

Official British and American spokesmen in the British capital were quoted as saying it is scarcely likely Russia would send a comparatively ranking general to the United States when First Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko is in New York.

Gromyko heads the Soviet delegation to the UN General Assembly session now meeting at Flushing Meadows, N. Y.

The Daily Mail reported said that Malinin has been authorized to suggest the complete control of Berlin should be turned over to the United Nations, making it "a neutral city."

IN THAT event, the Daily Mail continued, Russia could use its Security Council veto to retain actual control of the city once road and rail communications with the West were restored.

The Daily Mail said that regardless of whether the German sources are accurate in their reports, it is becoming increasingly clear in Berlin that the Russians are preparing for a decisive move in the immediate future.

Woman Treated After Bitten By Rabid Fox

A mad fox severely bit a Salt-creek Township woman as she attempted to protect her hens from his predatory raid Sunday night.

She is Mrs. Leslie Hawks of Circleville Route 4, who was treated in Berger hospital after the fox had left puncture wounds in the woman's face, left arm and both hands.

Mrs. Hawks reported that she and her husband had been playing cards early Sunday evening in their home when she heard a commotion in the henhouse.

She ran out to investigate, and as she opened the henhouse door the fox reportedly jumped at her and began snapping.

Her husband, following closely behind her, killed the fox with his pocket knife.

HEAD OF THE fox was taken to Columbus for examination by Harry Riffle, Pickaway County dog warden, and tests proved the animal was rabid.

Mrs. Hawks began her pasteur anti-rabic treatments Monday. The serum for the treatment is supplied by the county commis-

Eire Salutes Its Freedom

Irishmen Sever British Ties

DUBLIN, April 18—Flags, trumpets, a 21-gun salute and cheering Irishmen greeted the proclamation today of the Free Republic of Ireland.

In symbolic and historic ceremonies, Eire ended all formal ties with Great Britain on the 33rd anniversary of the bloody Easter rebellion that marked Ireland's final and successful bid for freedom.

Ireland's Independence Day hereafter will be celebrated on Easter Monday in memory of the 1916 revolt.

Thousands of Irishmen swarmed into Dublin to celebrate the event although former Prime Minister Eamon De Valera withheld the support of his party.

De Valera disavowed the celebrating because the six counties of Northern Ireland—Ulster—remain part of the United Kingdom.

Police said Mrs. Brennan's son Robert, 15, confessed killing Woolridge "at his mother's wish" and then digging the body up again and burning it in an oil drum, with the aid of his brother, Raymond, 23. The remains were then stuffed in cans and scattered in a city dump.

Robert and Mrs. Brennan were charged with murder, and Raymond was held as an accessory.

Meanwhile, a bundle of lavender-ribboned "lonely hearts" letters held the attention of police. They reported their records show that Hugo Schultz, 60, of Concord, N. H., another of Mrs. Brennan's lonely hearts suitors, is still missing. He disappeared during a visit by Mrs. Brennan and her sons five months ago in Concord.

Detectives from Berlin, N. J., also arrived to question Mrs. Brennan in the drowning of Mrs. Netti Henderson Phillips, 72-year-old invalid pensioner in Laurel Lake, N. J., in 1947. Mrs. Brennan then lived in Lindenwald, N. J., as a "neighbor and closest friend" of Mrs. Phillips.

Christian World Observes Easter, Sees Hope Increasing For Peace; Even China And Palestine Guns Are Silent

The Christian world returned to workaday tasks Monday, heartened by an Easter affirmation of brotherhood and peace unmatched in more than a decade.

Even in China and battle-scarred Palestine, the guns of war were silent as the leaders of nations and ordinary citizens alike joined in prayers for lasting peace.

Perhaps the biggest single throng to gather in observance of the day was the estimated million and a half persons who turned out for New York City's traditionally spectacular Easter parade down Fifth Avenue.

Of greater piety were the congregations of churchgoers and religious pilgrims at services and shrines of their faiths throughout the world.

In Rome, thousands of Catholic worshippers convened in St. Peter's Square hoping to receive the blessing of Pope Pius XII. But the pontiff prayed in seclusion for world peace.

Holy Land pilgrims to Nazareth were few in number compared to the years before the bitter Arab-Jewish war. And only a trickle of worshippers were permitted to enter the Arab-held old city of Jerusalem to attend mass in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Christ's traditional burial place.

There was a grim note, too, in China. For, though a truce in the civil war is in force, sian and Allied-occupied sectors of the divided city.

Britain's King George took the occasion to attend services outside a royal residence for the first time since his leg operation. Walking without a cane, he went to Easter ceremonies at the royal chapel in Windsor Park.

Here in the United States, President Truman and his family observed the day solemnly and quietly. The chief executive attended church services both at St. John's Episcopal church, often called the "Church of Presidents," and in Mr. Truman's regular First Baptist parish.

Fine Spring weather brought crowds out in record numbers in most parts of the country. But the midwestern states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota got a cold shoulder from the weather. Rain and snow shattered plans of would-be Easter paraders.

Meanwhile, the bill to increase jobless pay benefits, which like the oleo bill already has been approved by the senate, is slated for approval of the house industry and labor committee Wednesday.

The bill was scheduled for a recommendation for passage last week, but a subcommittee failed to report. The measure increases maximum benefits from $21 a week for 22 weeks to $25 for 26 weeks, plus up to $5 for dependent children.

On the senate side, Donald Richberg, one of the late President Roosevelt's original brain-trusters and administrator of the NRA of Blue Eagle fame, is scheduled to appear tomorrow before the commerce and labor committee at a hearing for opponents of the Fair Employment Practices Commission bill passed by the house.

Senate Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland) said she probably would move this week to revive Gov. Frank Lausche's "sheriff bill" in the judiciary committee.

THE BILL, which would give the governor the same power to remove sheriffs that he now has over mayors, was sidetracked April 5 by the committee when it voted, 7-0, to "indefinitely postpone" action.

Miss Mahoney said she acted as a senator and not as party floor leader when she voted to junk the measure. Since Republicans have attempted to make capital of her vote, she said, she would see that it was reconsidered.

There were charges that Lausche has given the signal to kill the bill after he milked it of its publicity value.

Another of the governor's pet measures still is pending. That is the bill of Sen. Robert Ragan (D-Toledo) to increase liquor permit fees by 50 percent.

It was once placed on the calendar—on March 16—but was laid aside when it obviously did not have enough votes for passage.

The bill is an important plank in Lausche's local government aid program. Since liquor fees are returned to the community of origin, the increase would mean as much to the financially-hungry cities as the $8 million increase in the local government fund.

Missouri Church Recalls Hayslip

The Rev. Ross Hayslip, formerly of Circleville Nazarene church, has been retained as pastor of Carthage, Mo., Nazarene church for three more years.

Rev. Mr. Hayslip left Circleville in the Spring of 1945 to go to Wooster. He went to the Missouri church last October. He reportedly is the first pastor ever to receive a unanimous recall to the Carthage Nazarene church.

A-Labor Unions Must Bargain

WASHINGTON, April 18—President Truman declared today that unions and management must settle labor disputes of atomic energy plants "through conscientious bargaining and use of existing conciliation services."

The chief executive issued a special statement in connection with a report made to him by a commission appointed to study labor relations in atomic energy installations.

Israel had a heathen background; heathens still torture themselves to show the sincerity of their mourning. Christians do not look upon death as an evil at all but a good, it is a promotion, an exaltation. We should not mourn at all for departed loved ones who are in a world infinitely better than this. Ye shall not make any cutting of your flesh for the dead.—Le. 19:28.

marked an end to the external relations act of 1936 by which Eire diplomats were accredited through the British crown. It severed the last link between Ireland and Britain.

Officials in both nations, however, predicted that ties between the countries will remain strong. Among the first messages of good will received were greetings from King George VI and prime ministers of the British commonwealth nations. President Truman also sent greetings on behalf of the United States.

Ireland's long and usually stormy association with Britain began with the invasion of 1169. Thereafter there were at least seven major uprisings, in 1598, 1641, 1649, 1690, 1803, and 1867.

Most of Ireland's great patriots, such as Tyrone and Parnell, were associated in the battle for freedom.

NAM Hits Tobin For 'Lobbying' For Labor Bill

facturers' association declared: "Apparently, Tobin's enthusiasm reaches the point where some think he envies himself as the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, and in giving play to this enthusiasm, Tobin seems to have overlooked the 30-year-old Section 201 of the criminal code."

The NAM said this provision forbids the use of any money appropriated by Congress to influence in any manner congressional action on any legislation.

THE NAM declared that the labor secretary is not likely to be criticized by President Truman since "the President is publicly on record defending the lobbying activities of government officials as being in what he described as 'the public interest.'"

The NAM publication continued: "Old timers in congressional circles are of the opinion that present administration lobby pressure exceeds that exerted in the hectic days of the supreme court packing bill."

"None other than Tobin apparently aspires to the role of chief lobbyist for the labor-boss-supported Lesinski bill in the House."

"This is the first time that Washington recalls a cabinet officer admitting that he has tested the opinion of all members of Congress on a piece of legislation."

The NAM challenged Tobin's prediction that the administration's labor bill has enough votes to pass. It said the administration today does not have the votes and "the local labor lobbyists are supposed to pick up these votes during the Easter recess."

Police Chief Albert Smith resigned Aug. 2, 1948, and was succeeded by E. J. Baumgardner who took office Aug. 9. He was slain in a gun battle Sept. 14. H. T. Collier served as Everts' chief from Sept. 27 to Oct. 11 when he quit.

Collier was followed by George Sellers who tendered his resignation after he was arrested three times in one week. The mayor's brother, Abe Bailey, filled the post as a temporary chief until Isachar Combs accepted the chief's badge.

Combs, in turn, lost the job March 19 when he was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of a man already under indictment for slaying Baumgardner.

Combs' conviction was set aside April 2 and he was granted a new trial. Everts' seventh chief since last August took over April 6. He is a 23-year-old miner and Marine Corps veteran, Bob McClain. He has not run into trouble yet.

Columbus Strike May Be Felt By Builders Here

A threatened walkout strike of Columbus area hod carriers, building and common laborers Monday was expected to have little effect on Pickaway County construction.

The Columbus local union, number 423, has voted to walkout in protest against a blanket contract offered by contractors to all building trade unions in the area.

Marshall Cobb, union business representative for the area, said Monday that practically all construction will be at a standstill "within a couple of days."

Cobb estimated that nearly 5,000 persons would be thrown out of work when the walkout becomes effective, since it will make the bricklayers, blocklayers, lathers, plasterers, etc., jobless.

Stansbury Construction Co. of Circleville Will Be Effected by the threatened walkout, but spokesmen for the company say the walkout would not hold up any vital construction here.

The spokesmen reported that all of their bricklayers, hod carriers, etc., are hired through Columbus and probably will follow suit in the strike.

However, the local company is now only adding finishing touches to its varied projects and a strike would not affect them to any great extent, they said.

Steinle-Wolf Construction Co. at the General Electric plant reports the walkout will not affect them, since the company plans to round out its job and pull up stakes within the next week.

Ford Employees Ponder Strike

DETROIT, April 18—Sixty-two thousand employees of the Ford Motor Co. today began voting on whether to call a strike that would shut down the huge River Rouge plant.

The strike vote was authorized by Ford Local 600, UAW-CIO, after workers complained the company had increased the speed of the assembly line in violation of a union agreement.

Meanwhile, more than 17,000 Ford workers idled by a walkout in the pressed steel division Friday returned to work today. Another 17,000 sent home Friday at Chrysler also went back today.

Browns Plan To Evict Cards

ST. LOUIS, April 18—On the eve of the major league season opening, the St. Louis Browns filed suit against the Cardinals today to evict the Cards from Sportsman's Park.

Bill Dewitt, Browns president, said he ordered the club's attorney, Lon Hocker, to file suit after receiving a final refusal from Fred Saigh, Cardinal president, on the Browns' demand for a rent increase for this city's baseball park.

Tarlton School Sells For $2,000

Tarlton's three-room, brick schoolhouse sold for $2,000 in public auction Saturday afternoon.

The old school building was purchased by Mrs. James Arledge of Circleville Route 4. Mrs. Arledge reportedly has made no plans concerning converting the building into either a home or a business place.

Money from the sale will be turned over to the Saltcreek Township board of education. The schoolhouse has been abandoned since Tarlton youngsters have been attending school in the Saltcreek district. Willison Leist was auctioneer for the sale.

Traffic Mishaps Keep Patrolmen Busy Sunday

A series of traffic accidents, involving injury to one person, kept State Highway Patrolmen C. E. Wells and Charles Watters more than a little busy Easter Sunday.

At one point, demands on their services increased to an extent where Patrolman Wells said it necessary to borrow a Circleville police cruiser.

The accidents started early Sunday morning. Watters said the first one occurred at 12:20 a. m. when a car driven by Ernest O'Dell, 17, of East Mound street was sideswiped on U. S. Route 23 by another vehicle driven by James Bowsher of Columbus. The patrolman reported damage to the cars, but no injuries.

At 1 p. m. Watters was busy investigating another accident on State Route 180 involving the entry of two cars into a one-way covered bridge from opposite sides. The result was a collision.

WATTERS SAID a car driven by Clell McNeal of East Union street apparently had the right of way on the bridge. His car was sideswiped by another vehicle driven by Melvin Tatman of Kingston. There were no injuries, the patrolman said.

But while Watters was checking the circumstances of the bridge collision, Patrolman Wells, busy testifying on two drunken driving cases in Circleville mayor's court, was notified of a wreck on U. S. Route 23. Wells borrowed a city cruiser and rushed to the scene.

The accident took place on U. S. Route 23 at 2:15 p. m. about three miles south of Circleville. Wells said the accident occurred when Warren Dorton, 39, of Marion, lost control of his car when it skidded on wet pavement. The car left the highway and turned over.

Dorton and two passengers in the car were taken to Berger hospital, where attendants reported Dorton suffered a compound fracture of the right leg. He was later transferred to Mercy hospital in Columbus.

The passengers, Ernest Denny, 14, of Marion and Norman Thacker, 23, of Forest were released from Berger hospital. Denny suffered lacerations of the right foot, according to hospital attendants.

Last accident occurred when a car driven by Richard Dean, 22, of Columbus sideswiped another vehicle driven by S. H. Lehman, 56, of Cincinnati.

Wells said Dean was driving on the left side of the road when the crash occurred. There were no injuries, he said.

but the fine has never been imposed. Meanwhile, the bill to increase jobless pay benefits, which like the oleo bill already has been approved by the senate, is slated for approval of the house industry and labor committee Wednesday.

The bill was scheduled for a recommendation for passage last week, but a subcommittee failed to report. The measure increases maximum benefits from $21 a week for 22 weeks to $25 for 26 weeks, plus up to $5 for dependent children.

On the senate side, Donald Rieberg, one of the late President Roosevelt's original brain-trusters and administrator of the NRA of Blue Eagle fame, is scheduled to appear tomorrow before the commerce and labor committee at a hearing for opponents of the Fair Employment Practices Commission bill passed by the house.

Senate Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland) said she probably would move this week to revive Gov. Frank Lausche's "sheriff bill" in the judiciary committee.

THE BILL, which would give the governor the same power to remove sheriffs that he now has over mayors, was sidetracked April 5 by the committee when it voted, 7-0, to "indefinitely postpone" action.

Miss Mahoney said she acted as a senator and not as party floor leader when she voted to junk the measure. Since Republicans have attempted to make capital of her vote, she said, she would see that it was reconsidered.

There were charges that Lausche has given the signal to kill the bill after he milked it of its publicity value.

Another of the governor's pet measures still is pending. That is the bill of Sen. Robert Ragan (D-Toledo) to increase liquor permit fees by 50 percent.

It was once placed on the calendar—on March 16—but was laid aside when it obviously did not have enough votes for passage.

The bill is an important plank in Lausche's local government aid program. Since liquor fees are returned to the community of origin, the increase would mean as much to the financially-hungry cities as an $8 million increase in the local government fund.

Missouri Church Recalls Hayslip

The Rev. Ross Hayslip, formerly of Circleville Nazarene church, has been retained as pastor of Carthage, Mo., Nazarene church for three more years.

Rev. Mr. Hayslip left Circleville in the Spring of 1945 to go to Wooster. He went to the Missouri church last October. He reportedly is the first pastor ever to receive a unanimous recall to the Carthage Nazarene church.

A-Labor Unions Must Bargain

WASHINGTON, April 18—President Truman declared today that unions and management must settle labor disputes of atomic energy plants "through conscientious bargaining and use of existing conciliation services."

The chief executive issued a special statement in connection with a report made to him by a commission appointed to study labor relations in atomic energy installations.

Israel had a heathen background; heathens still torture themselves to show the sincerity of their mourning. Christians do not look upon death as an evil at all but a good, it is a promotion, an exaltation. We should not mourn at all for departed loved ones who are in a world infinitely better than this. Ye shall not make any cutting of your flesh for the dead.—I.e. 19:28.

Police Chief Albert Smith resigned Aug. 2, 1948, and was succeeded by E. J. Baumgardner who took office Aug. 9. He was slain in a gun battle Sept. 14. H. T. Collier served as Everts' chief from Sept. 27 to Oct. 11 when he quit.

Collier was followed by George Sellers who tendered his resignation after he was arrested three times in one week. The mayor's brother, Abe Bailey, filled the post as a temporary chief until Isachar Combs accepted the chief's badge.

Combs, in turn, lost the job March 19 when he was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of a man already under indictment for slaying Baumgardner.

Combs' conviction was set aside April 2 and he was granted a new trial. Everts' seventh chief since last August took over April 6. He is a 23-year-old miner and Marine Corps veteran, Bob McClain. He has not run into trouble yet.

COLD SLAW FAN IN EVERY FAMILY

New Picture Chart Will Tell If Man Is Jerk Or Genius

NEW YORK, April 18—Sometimes it is very difficult for a real sincere person to know whether he is running around with a genius or a jerk.

But a picture magazine has simplified the problem. It contains a picture chart which will enable anyone almost instantly to tell whether he or his loved one is a Einstein or an idiot. On account of lots of people do not know, apparently.

According to this chart, man's choice of certain objects in 11 broad categories, ranging from salads and alcoholic drinks through clothes, furniture, entertainment, reading and games, are an infallible clue to whether he is a member of the intelligentsia or the pool parlor set.

According to the chart, you can tell a man by the greens he chomps.

IF HE TAKES his salad straight, in an unwashed bowl, made strictly with assorted alfalfa and tossed together with olive oil, wine vinegar and freshly ground pepper and salt, then he is an unmitigated high brow who likes ballet, Picasso and modern furniture.

If he drinks with this "adequate little" red wine, you can be sure he is a genuine member of the literati who wouldn't be caught dead in bed with "Forever Amber."

But if, on the other hand, he likes cold slaw and washes down this limp, pallid excess with beer, made no mistake. He is a lug and ought to get lost on the double. The cold slaw-beer man, according to the chart, is just one peg above the ape man, roaming the forest primeval.

Now that all this has brought it out in the open, most observers suppose there is scarcely a family in America that does not have its cold-slaw problem. Uncle Willie was the cold-slaw aficionado in one news writer's family and a nicer man never lived until he got his first taste of it.

Grandpaw, Uncle Willie's father, that is, took Uncle Willie's dereliction hard. Grandpaw was a real high brow, all right, a strict green and garlic man, who read Homer in the original and drank a jug of red wine every meal.

Well, Grandpaw sent Uncle Willie off to Harvard and it was a terrible thing when Willie came home with cold slaw on his breath. Like to killed the old man. He had had high hopes for Uncle Willie, sort of set his heart on making an encyclopedia salesman out of him.

But things went from bad to worse. Uncle Willie even took the Keeley cure. But it was no use. Finally, in desperation, he joined Cold Slaw Anonymous. It helped for a while, but Uncle Willie was passing the corner coffee pot one day and caught a whiff of that odor—into a lone cold slaw eater. Eventually, he just sort of disappeared.

Uncle Ashe, Willie's brother, came to a sad end, too. Uncle Ashe was a real member of the literati and no mistake. He not only insisted on chomping his greens pure and undefiled by avodacos, tomatoes or roquefort cheese (all signs of the inferior man), but on making the salad dressing at the table.

This always necessitated washing the table cloth afterward and immersing Uncle Ashe in some good cleaning fluid. Unfortunately, Uncle Ashe dined once too often with an impatient host who shot him between the salad bowl and the watch pocket. The jury acquitted on grounds of justifiable homicide.

The picture magazine does not even mention the kind of creep character who would order a tea shoppe salad. It is obvious that such a party is better off dead. But, leave us face it: There is one in every family.

Henry County Sheriff Fred Bartels said the two families had moved recently to Fort Wayne, Ind., from Toledo.

Chamber Commerce Sees Increase In Volume Of State Property Tax

COLUMBUS, April 18—A rapid increase in property tax revenues were describe by an Ohio Chamber of Commerce executive as an "out" for the state government in its distribution of funds.

Herschel C. Atkinson, executive vice-president of the state chamber, pointed out that the increased revenue of taxes would "so improve the financial position of municipalities, other local subdivisions and schools so as to sharply lessen their need for increasing assistance from the state."

Using figures recently released from the state department of taxation Atkinson said the 1949 revaluation of property which will be made in Ohio will "augment the revenues available."

He emphasized that the figures showed a 32.4 percent increase in the 1948 collections over those in 1940. Taxes on real estate, public utility, personal property and intangibles were $75,109,819 greater than the 1940 collections.

Leading the state's 88 counties with a 22.7 percent increase in tax yields over 1945 figures are Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Franklin, Lucas, Summit, Montgomery, Mahoning and Stark Counties.

COLD SLAW FAN IN EVERY FAMILY

New Picture Chart Will Tell If Man Is Jerk Or Genius

NEW YORK, April 18—Sometimes it is very difficult for a real sincere person to know whether he is running around with a genius or a jerk.

But a picture magazine has simplified the problem. It contains a picture chart which will enable anyone almost instantly to tell whether he or his loved one is a Einstein or an idiot. On account of lots of people do not know, apparently.

According to this chart, man's choice of certain objects in 11 broad categories, ranging from salads and alcoholic drinks through clothes, furniture, entertainment, reading and games, are an infallible clue to whether he is a member of the intelligentsia or the pool parlor set.

According to the chart, you can tell a man by the greens he chomps.

IF HE TAKES his salad straight, in an unwashed bowl, made strictly with assorted alfalfa and tossed together with olive oil, wine vinegar and freshly ground pepper and salt, then he is an unmitigated high brow who likes ballet, Picasso and modern furniture.

If he drinks with this "adequate little" red wine, you can be sure he is a genuine member of the literati who wouldn't be caught dead in bed with "Forever Amber."

But if, on the other hand, he likes cold slaw and washes down this limp, pallid excretion with beer, made no mistake? He is a lug and ought to get lost on the double. The cold slaw-beer man, according to the chart, is just one peg above the ape man, roaming the forest primeval.

Now that all this has brought it out in the open, most observers suppose there is scarcely a family in America that does not have its cold-slaw problem. Uncle Willie was the cold-slaw aficionado in one news writer's family and a nicer man never lived until he got his first taste of it.

Grandpaw, Uncle Willie's father, that is, took Uncle Willie's dereliction hard. Grandpaw was a real high brow, all right, a strict green and garlic man, who read Homer in the original and drank a jug of red wine every meal.

Well, Grandpaw sent Uncle Willie off to Harvard and it was a terrible thing when Willie came home with cold slaw on his breath. Like to killed the old man. He had had high hopes for Uncle Willie, sort of set his heart on making an encyclopedia salesman out of him.

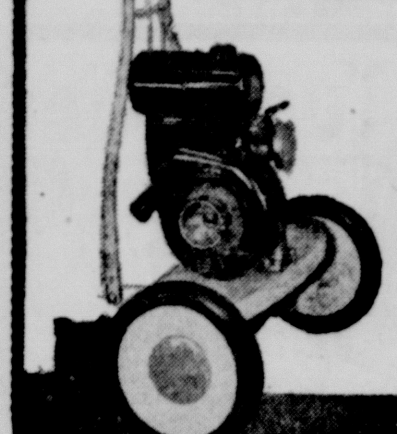

But things went from bad to worse. Uncle Willie even took the Keeley cure. But it was no use. Finally, in desperation, he joined Cold Slaw Anonymous. It helped for a while, but Uncle Willie was passing the corner coffee pot one day and caught a whiff of that odor—

IMPROVING GOVERNMENT

THE latest rumor is of a movement to take over and continue the work of the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government. This group has finished its assigned task and rendered its report. It is now up to Congress to adopt it in whole, in part, or not at all.

Even if all the Commission's recommendations were enacted, ex-President Hoover would be the last person to say that the government had then become perfect. New needs and unforeseen defects in old structures will appear from time to time. A permanent survey, keeping constantly in touch with the government, would be extremely useful. Such a survey would not deal with matters of policy, such as whether Uncle Sam should control rents. It would recommend, however, the most efficient method of carrying out whatever policy was chosen.

The details of the proposed continuous project are still in the air. It is to be hoped that they will prove more than rumor. More immediately, however, some kind of project probably will be required to induce Congress to do something about the Hoover report itself.

FUTURE OF THE WORLD

OLAF Stapledon, a British delegate to the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, is that rare creature, a philosopher who is also the author of an amazing piece of fiction.

His fantasy, "Last and First Men," envisions the destruction of the human race and its replacement by a second species of mankind, which eventually struggles upward as our race has done. Over the millions of years this second race is succeeded by a third, and so on. Eventually the earth becomes uninhabitable, but the men of that time are able to take refuge on the planet Venus.

Many millions of years later Venus also becomes unfit for habitation, and there is another mass migration to Jupiter. Finally the astronomers of that time predict the destruction of the entire solar system by a comet. The human race of that day awaits the outcome with fortitude, and meanwhile bombards the outer universe with spores of life, hoping that some will take root somewhere and carry on the story.

This novel must break all records for the length of time required for its action. No one will accuse Stapledon of having a short-range imagination.

My New York
By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, a reasonably thriving concern, has had a dubious standing in my eyes since 1944 or 1945.

Those were hard years for us 4-Fs, and the New Haven brought home the rigors of war to me sharply and unpleasantly by forcing me to stand on several long trips engaged in by its trains. Once, I remember, I stood all the way from Boston and another time I stood all the way from New Haven.

They talked of the hardships of our boys on Iwo Jima and Tarawa. Storming beachheads and walking into flame-throwers. Anyone can storm a beachhead. It takes a game, strong and fit man to stand all the way from Boston. That's more than 200 miles.

Now, however, my heart is softening toward the New Haven. Recently, this bemused railway created what it called a Show Train. Consisting of 10 stainless steel coaches and a couple of new grill cars, the Show Train's duties are to pick up assorted suburbanites from Connecticut way stations, fetch them into Grand Central station in time to arrive at a theater in time for the curtain of a hit musical, and, at evening's end, shepherd all the commuters back aboard and deliver them to their little gray homes in the north.

There is, I understand, a flat fee for the whole business. The New Haven, on receipt of this fee, furnishes transportation, food and reasonably good tickets to the show.

The other night, for instance, the package deal included the Ray Bolger show, "Where's Charley?", and more than six hundred theater-hungry Connecticut souls were in on it.

THE BIG MOVIE HOUSES on upper Broadway are not too appealing from a standpoint of character. They seem to get mostly tourists and, as we say, loftily in poker circles, ribbon clerks, who have no minds of their own.

The most interesting house I ever have visited is Loew's Sheri-

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Competent, experienced men are not attracted to administrative positions in government not only because the pay is inadequate but because it is too difficult to make a positive contribution. More regulations are ruined in government service than are made. I am not speaking of elected officials, who choose to take the gaff of political canvass and partisan criticism; this reference is to men skilled in administration who are willing to devote their time, at great sacrifice, to serve their country.

James Forrestal entered the government service in 1940, when the European war had started and this country was faced with the immediate necessity for preparedness. He served as undersecretary of Navy, as secretary of Navy, as secretary of defense, during the war and during the trying years after the war.

He devoted himself to the unification of the armed forces and served on the Hoover Commission. I have been told that during these nine years of unbelievably arduous and exacting service, he was never able to take a full vacation.

Forrestal's tenure in office after the war was particularly exasperating. The opponents of unification of the armed forces naturally did everything possible to make that plan fail. This was particularly true of the Air Force, which saw in unification a reduction of its newly earned independence. The law reduced the secretaries of War, Navy, and Air to subordination to the secretary of defense, but the same law permitted these departmental heads to go directly over the head of the secretary of defense to the President and Congress. Air Force Secretary Symington did, with the result that unification was shot and administrative discipline among the armed services disappeared.

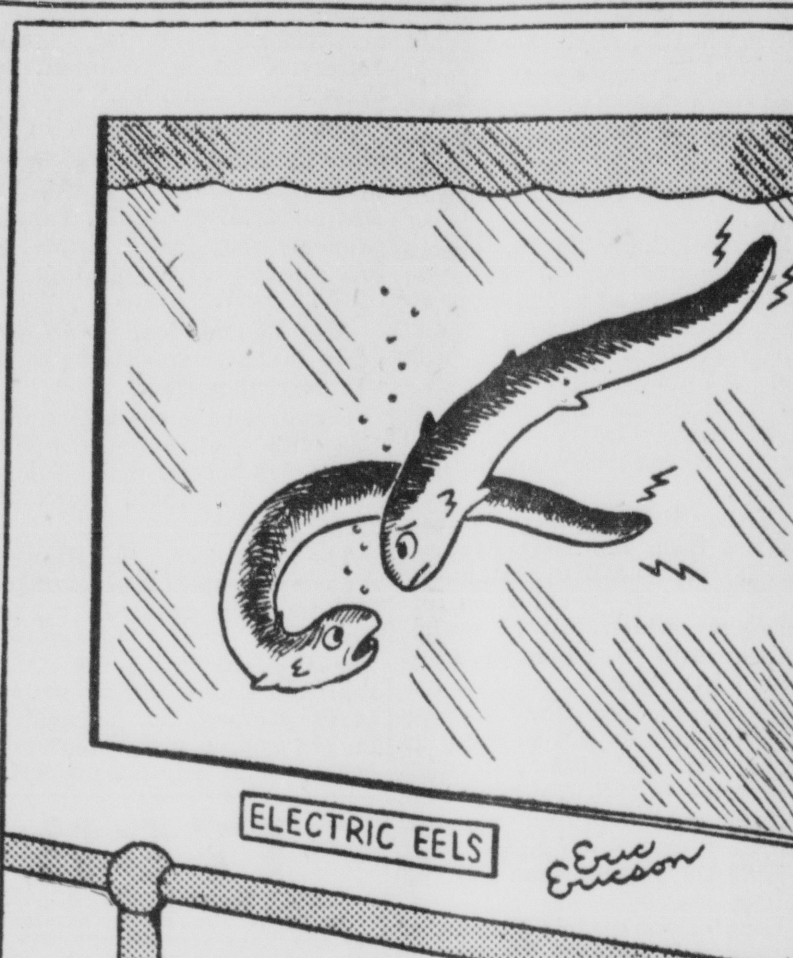

Another difficulty that faced Forrestal was the law creating the joint chiefs of staff, which made this not a board but a meeting place for a continuing disagreement which he lacked the authority to resolve or end. Finally, General Eisenhower was asked to leave his new and important work at Columbia university to attempt to bring these high military officers to a realization of the fact that they are engaged in the defense of the United States, not the promotion of their particular services.

Throughout his administrative career, Forrestal was fought by New Dealers and the Communists. He had been a banker and was therefore looked upon as a reactionary. He foresaw the end of Roosevelt's Yalta policy and therefore was disliked by those in the State Department who made that the cornerstone of national conduct—to our tragic disadvantage. He regarded the Middle East as an American military proposition and tended to favor the Arabs.

Forrestal's resignation was accepted on a Thursday. I know absolutely that late on the previous Sunday, he did not know that it would happen.

Forrestal, a loyal servant of the American people, an honest, forthright public official who served his country, at a sacrifice and beyond the line of duty, is today a very sick man. He needs the friendship and sympathy and good will of a nation that should remember those who come to her service in the hour of her need. And may a grateful people pray for his full and speedy recovery that he may still be of value to our country.

DIET AND HEALTH
Preparing For An Operation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

RECOVERY from operation is quicker and more sure today than ever before in the history of medicine. This is due not only to advances in surgical technique but also to our better understanding of what can be accomplished by pre-operative preparation and post-operative care.

Today, where operation is not a matter of emergency, much attention is given to the matter of putting the patient in the best possible condition in advance of surgery.

Diet is of great importance. It should not only correct any deficiencies but also supply a reserve of the materials which aid healing.

One of the diets successfully prescribed gives about 3½ ounces of protein daily from such foods as meat, milk, and eggs, plenty of vitamin C, and between 2000 and 3000 calories or heat units.

Quart of Milk

The diet, for example, may include one quart of milk, two servings of lean meat, fish, chicken, or liver; one or more eggs; cheese; two vegetables, one green and one yellow; two fruits, one citrus or a tomato, and, when grain is enriched bread and cereals.

Prior to operation, it is also important to eliminate, insofar as possible, any bronchial or nasal infection and to get rid of decayed teeth. These things are important in preventing complications affecting the lungs or the salivary glands. Treatment with penicillin vapor to overcome infection in the nose or bronchial tubes is often helpful.

As a rule, the patient who has an operation, must use a bed pan and urinal following operative procedures, for several days at least. It is suggested that practice in using the bed pan and urinal at home prior to going to the hospital will reduce the need for enemas or the passage of a catheter into the bladder to eliminate the secretions.

If it is necessary for the patient to remain in bed for a time prior to operation, it is a good idea to keep the limbs mobile by exercises.

Drs. Zollinger and Artz recommend that for two or three days before admission to the hospital, the patient take a dose of mineral oil, by mouth, each day. One of the sulfonamide drugs is given before intestinal surgery.

Following the operation, good care is again necessary in order to speed recovery. The same type of diet used prior to operation is employed in most cases, depending, of course, upon the type of operation carried out. The patient should regain his ordinary eating habits just as rapidly as possible.

After an abdominal operation, walking up and down stairs is, as a rule, permitted by the second week, but heavy lifting should be avoided for two months. Moderate exercise is permitted and light work may be allowed in from three to six weeks.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"BEATRICE? Beatrice?" Mrs. Ramey asked. Her voice was irritable. Waiting annoyed her extremely. No one should keep her waiting.

"Yes, Mrs. Ramey."

"Thank goodness you're home. I've called every day. Didn't Frances tell you? You certainly were not in a great hurry to come home. I called every day, and no one knew when you were coming back. It isn't like you to run off like that."

"It was extremely good for me for many reasons."

"Very well, my dear. Have your little joke."

"I'm not joking, Mrs. Ramey."

"New York must have been very interesting indeed. Usually you stay only a few days. But, after all, you do have a family, and a home, and . . . and me."

No, Beatrice thought, you have me, Mrs. Ramey.

Mrs. Ramey went on speaking rapidly. "You didn't tell me a thing about your friend Libby's moving to the country. Really, Beatrice, your loyalty to that woman and her ohimsa. Someone who went out to see her said that she has stopped wearing all those jewels. She probably pawned them. The person also said that she was living in some perfectly horrible little house that belongs to an impossibly eccentric woman and that that man—that foreigner—is always there."

"I'm afraid you've been badly misinformed, Mrs. Ramey. Really, it's very different than that."

"You would say that if she were living openly with that man. What's the matter with you?"

"Nothing. I'm quite all right."

"Are you sure you're not keeping something from me? You sound—I've missed you, Beatrice. I've missed you dreadfully."

Beatrice was touched. "Have you, Mrs. Ramey?"

"Of course. I haven't been anywhere, and I've had nothing done for me."

"Oh." What a fool I was to believe for a split second that she had missed me for my own sake!

and not for what I do for her as her errand girl and chauffeur.

"If you had stayed a day longer I was going to write you to come home, and I'd have felt entirely within my rights to do so. I've never known you to be so selfish. And here I have been literally stuck to this house. You know I won't ride in cabs. I'm afraid of them, and the drivers are all rude and foul-mouthed."

I like cab drivers, Beatrice thought. I always talk to them. Once one told me about his canary. You wouldn't believe that, would you, Mrs. Ramey? You wouldn't believe that once a cab driver told me how bad he felt when his canary died. He said he'd had him for 16 years. That's the trouble with you and your kind and the fixed rigid pattern of your lives. You don't think that anyone out of your own narrow orbit is human. You don't think he has anything worth preserving. Oh, how you miss the rich little dramas of life because you won't ride in cabs, and you think it's degrading to go into a grocery store and buy your own fruits and vegetables and meats and talk to the people who sell them.

"Are you there, Beatrice?" Mrs. Ramey asked.

"Yes." But I'm not listening. "What do you want me to do for you today?"

"Ah," Mrs. Ramey said. She has me in line, Beatrice thought. That's why she's purring. She has the rope around my neck again because she thinks I love the luxury of servants, and I adore wearing beautiful clothes on my body, and I revel in my prominence and dream every night of how rich I'm going to be when she dies. That's what she thinks!

Mrs. Ramey said, "I want you to come out and help me with my guest list. I want to talk to you about picking up the things I'll need, and making the necessary telephone calls. How soon can you get here?"

"After lunch. Not before, I'm afraid. I have a call to make first."

"So soon after being away so long?"

You'd think I'd been gone a year, Beatrice thought. And it doesn't occur to you, Mrs. Ramey, to inquire about my mother whom I went to see.

"So soon," Beatrice said flatly. "Surely that person could be put off for me, and you could come at once."

"I've put it off too long now."

Very well, Beatrice, most irritating. Of course if you don't want to do these small favors for me I shall get someone else and pay her. My dear child, it is not I who should be grateful. Everyone knows what I have done for you, and your husband, and your child; and I shall continue to remind you of my benevolence as long as you act this way. Are you coming or not?"

"I shall be there after lunch," Beatrice said. "Believe me, Mrs. Ramey, it is not my intention to be irritating to anyone."

"You see?" Her tone was pleased. "You always come around. Really, Beatrice, I am so glad to have you back, that I shall be generous and say no more about it. I'll look for you after lunch. Good-bye, my dear."

"Good-bye, Mrs. Ramey."

Beatrice arose, thinking, I am as close to violence as I have ever been in my life. Her benevolence. My gratitude. My soul and body. Purring, cooing, wrapping me around her finger, commanding me, ordering me, dictating to me, owning me—I hate her!

She picked up her purse and gloves again, and went downstairs. She spoke to Frances and then left the house. Outside she tried to breathe deeply of the cold air, but her breast hurt as if there was a weight in her heart, a stone. Porter, I need you. I've always needed you even before I knew you. And that's why I had the sense to know when I met you that my need had been met. That was the feeling of permanence I had, the sensation that I had reached the top of the hill. Porter, where have you gone with that girl?

1 One of the most colorful figures in the American Revolution was a swashbuckling sailor who was born in the parish of Kirkcubright, Solway Firth, Scotland. July 6, 1747. Of matchless courage, his fiery temper led him into many difficulties. Becoming a cabin boy at 12, he soon became chief mate of a slave ship. A ship's carpenter he had flogged for desertion, died. When the crew of a ship he had purchased mutinied, he killed the ring leader. He fled to the American colonies where he changed his name. He joined the Continental Navy and eventually came in command of the Bon Homme Richard which defeated the British man-of-war Serapis in a great sea fight, Sept. 23, 1779. His own ship sinking, he seized the Serapis. The Revolution over, he became an admiral of the Russian navy and enjoyed the confidence of Czarina Catherine the Great. He died in France in 1792. Who was he?

2 Born Feb. 15, 1882, son of a famous theatrical family, this actor made a success of both stage and screen roles. He made his first stage appearance in Magda in 1903. The Test in 1919. Shakespeare's Richard III the following year and Hamlet—one of his most successful roles, in 1923. He starred for years in motion pictures, in such films as The Sea Beast, Beau Brummel, Don Juan, Svengali, The Mad Genius, Moby Dick, and on the stage in 1940 in My Dear Children. He was four times wed, was called "The Great Profile" and "The Great Lover," and he died May 29, 1942. Can you name him?

dan, across the street from St. Vincent's hospital. There, all Randolph Scott movies are booted systematically and vigorously. The audience, as you see, shows remarkable discrimination.

It is in the heart of Greenwich Village, whose inhabitants naturally have no inhibitions—and yet their approval or disapproval is limited to the Hollywood products shown. Newsreels with controversial subjects are treated rather indifferently, and there are no boos or cheers for either Stalin or Churchill, representing the two ways of life.

There is an uptown Manhattan house called the Thalia to which I venture occasionally but timidly. The films all are foreign-made with English titles, and I don't feel I know enough languages to be allowed entry.

The customers here all stand around knowingly after the show is over and they discuss the art of Fritz Lang and Marcel Pagnol as if they knew what they were discussing.

JUST A FEW BLOCKS from Loew's Sheridan is a little "class" house called the Art. The audience there is as different as night from day when compared with the Sheridan.

The pseudo-intellectuals and the ones who are making the world safe for something compose a good segment of the Art's population and the result is that almost any given newsreel subject brings on a storm of applause or jeers.

The other night I went hunting for a revival of Pygmalion and came upon it at the Art. The newsreel which preceded the feature was hilarious.

First, they showed scenes of the picketing at the Waldorf-Astoria, where the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace was holding forth. This was booted and cheered equally, since the Village's components are about equally Red and Tory.

Then came some scenes of Juan Peron, Argentina's strong man, and the boozing and cheering increased. The next clip showed another socially significant scene—I lost track of world affairs at this point—and the opposing camps hooted and bellowed at each other across the orchestra even louder.

Finally they showed the running of the Grand National, and when they showed Russian Hero as the winner, the whole thing started up again—until suddenly everyone seemed to realize all at once just how ridiculous it was to be booing or applauding a movie when the actors couldn't hear you.

Somebody started laughing and then somebody else, and the next thing you know, there was everyone in the Art roaring their heads off.

I wish I could believe that the lesson took, but I guess they will be right back there tonight, heckling or clapping and getting ulcers. Not me. I try to arrive just in time for Roy Rogers.

Baseball is here and for the next few months we will be more concerned with men left on bases than Atlantic bases.

Mr. Truman was grateful for the season pass given him by the Senators baseball club. It's the first nice thing he's gotten from any senators since January.

In fact, we understand when the President was told "there's a group of senators here to see you," he said "if Taft is with them, tell them I'm not home."

But DiMaggio's tough luck darkens the baseball picture. Achilles' heel never worried the Greeks half as much as DiMaggio's heel troubles the Yankees.

Although the way some managers play to him, Joe could sit in a chair at the plate, waggle a bat and still draw a base on four outside and high.

Anyway until we know definitely about Joe's heel, any other heels will get little of our attention.

IMPROVING GOVERNMENT

THE latest rumor is of a movement to take over and continue the work of the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government. This group has finished its assigned task and rendered its report. It is now up to Congress to adopt it in whole, in part, or not at all.

Even if all the Commission's recommendations were enacted, ex-President Hoover would be the last person to say that the government had then become perfect. New needs and unforeseen defects in old structures will appear from time to time. A permanent survey, keeping constantly in touch with the government, would be extremely useful. Such a survey would not deal with matters of policy, such as whether Uncle Sam should control rents. It would recommend, however, the most efficient method of carrying out whatever policy was chosen.

The details of the proposed continuous project are still in the air. It is to be hoped that they will prove more than rumor. More immediately, however, some kind of project probably will be required to induce Congress to do something about the Hoover report itself.

FUTURE OF THE WORLD

OLAF Stapledon, a British delegate to the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, is that rare creature, a philosopher who is also the author of an amazing piece of fiction.

His fantasy, "Last and First Men," envisions the destruction of the human race and its replacement by a second species of mankind, which eventually struggles upward as our race has done. Over the millions of years this second race is succeeded by a third, and so on. Eventually the earth becomes uninhabitable, but the men of that time are able to take refuge on the planet Venus.

Many millions of years later Venus also becomes unfit for habitation, and there is another mass migration to Jupiter. Finally the astronomers of that time predict the destruction of the entire solar system by a comet. The human race of that day awaits the outcome with fortitude, and meanwhile bombards the outer universe with spores of life, hoping that some will take root somewhere and carry on the story.

This novel must break all records for the length of time required for its action. No one will accuse Stapledon of having a short-range imagination.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Competent, experienced men are not attracted to administrative positions in government not only because the pay is inadequate but because it is too difficult to make a positive contribution. More regulations are ruined in government service than are made. I am not speaking of elected officials, who choose to take the gaff of political canvass and partisan criticism; this reference is to men skilled in administration who are willing to devote their time, at great sacrifice, to serve their country.

James Forrestal entered the government service in 1940, when the European war had started and this country was faced with the immediate necessity for preparedness. He served as undersecretary of Navy, as secretary of Navy, as secretary of defense, during the war and during the trying years after the war.

He devoted himself to the unification of the armed forces and served on the Hoover Commission. I have been told that during these nine years of unbelievably arduous and exacting service, he was never able to take a full vacation.

Forrestal's tenure in office after the war was particularly exasperating. The opponents of unification of the armed forces naturally did everything possible to make that plan fail. This was particularly true of the Air Force, which saw in unification a reduction of its newly earned independence. The law reduced the secretaries of War, Navy, and Air to subordination to the secretary of defense, but the same law permitted these departmental heads to go directly over the head of the secretary of defense to the President and Congress. Air Force Secretary Symington did, with the result that unification was shot and administrative discipline among the armed services disappeared.

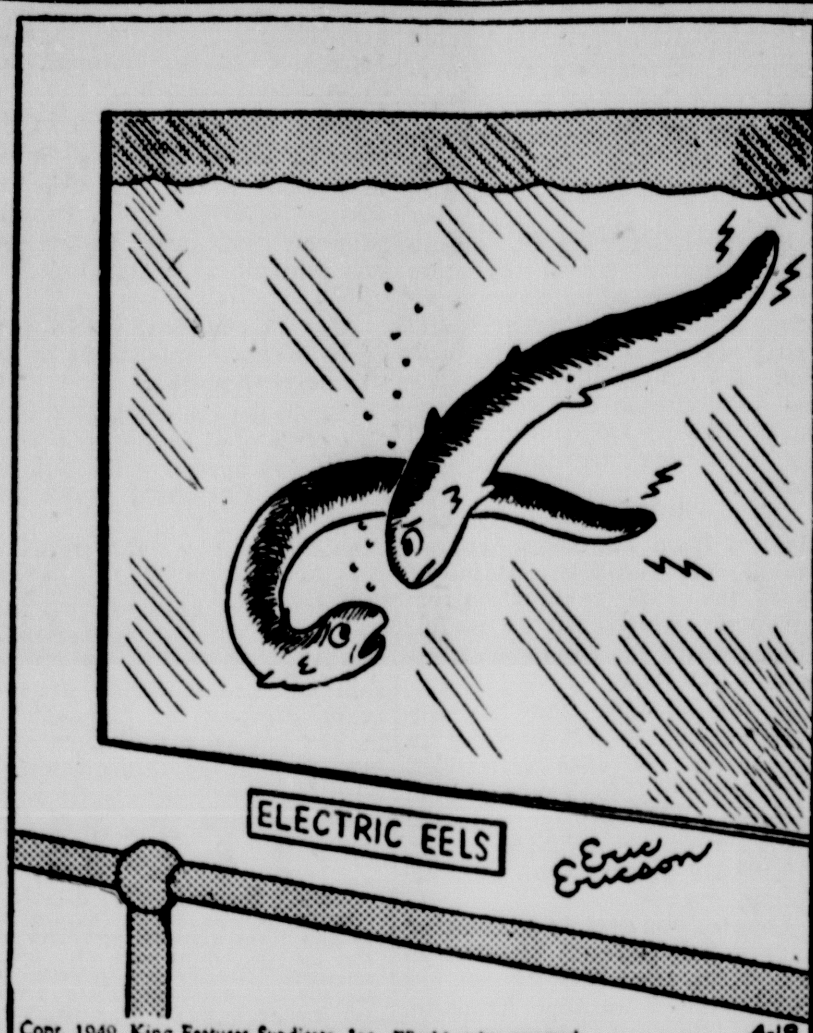

Another difficulty that faced Forrestal was the law creating the joint chiefs of staff, which made this not a board but a meeting place for a continuing disagreement which he lacked the authority to resolve or end. Finally, General Eisenhower was asked to leave his new and important work at Columbia university to attempt to bring these high military officers to a realization of the fact that they are engaged in the defense of the United States, not the promotion of their particular services.

Throughout his administrative career, Forrestal was fought by New Dealers and the Communists. He had been a banker and was therefore looked upon as a reactionary. He foresaw the end of Roosevelt's Yalta policy and therefore was disliked by those in the State Department who made that the cornerstone of national conduct—to our tragic disadvantage. He regarded the Middle East as an American military proposition and tended to favor the Arabs.

Forrestal's resignation was accepted on a Thursday. I know absolutely that late on the previous Sunday, he did not know that it would happen.

Forrestal, a loyal servant of the American people, an honest, forthright public official who served his country, at a sacrifice and beyond the line of duty, is today a very sick man. He needs the friendship and sympathy and good will of a nation that should remember those who come to her service in the hour of her need. And may a grateful people pray for his full and speedy recovery that he may still be of value to our country.

DIET AND HEALTH

Preparing For An Operation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

RECOVERY from operation is quicker and more sure today than ever before in the history of medicine. This is due not only to advances in surgical technique but also to our better understanding of what can be accomplished by pre-operative preparation and post-operative care.

Today, where operation is not a matter of emergency, much attention is given to the matter of putting the patient in the best possible condition in advance of surgery.

Diet is of great importance. It should not only correct any deficiencies but also supply a reserve of the materials which aid healing.

One of the diets successfully prescribed gives about 8½ ounces of protein daily from such foods as meat, milk, and eggs, plenty of vitamin C, and between 2000 and 3000 calories or heat units.

Quart of Milk

The diet, for example, may include one quart of milk, two servings of lean meat, fish, chicken, or liver; one or more eggs; cheese; two vegetables, one green and one yellow; two fruits, one citrus or a tomato, and whole-grain or enriched bread and cereals.

Prior to operation, it is also important to eliminate, insofar as possible, any bronchial or nasal infection and to get rid of decayed teeth. These things are important in preventing complications affecting the lungs or the salivary glands. Treatment with penicillin vapor to overcome infection in the nose or bronchial tubes is often helpful.

As a rule, the patient who has an operation, must use a bed pan and urinal following operative procedures, for several days at least. It is suggested that practice in using the bed pan and urinal at home prior to going to the hospital will reduce the need for enemas or the passage of a catheter into the bladder to eliminate the secretions.

If it is necessary for the patient to remain in bed for a time prior to operation, it is a good idea to keep the limbs mobile by exercises.

Drs. Zollinger and Artz recommend that for two or three days before admission to the hospital, the patient take a dose of mineral oil, by mouth, each day. One of the sulfonamide drugs is given before intestinal surgery.

Following the operation, good care is again necessary in order to speed recovery. The same type of diet used prior to operation is employed in most cases, depending, of course, upon the type of operation carried out. The patient should regain his ordinary eating habits just as rapidly as possible.

After an abdominal operation, walking up and down stairs is, as a rule, permitted by the second week, but heavy lifting should be avoided for two months. Moderate exercise is permitted and light work may be allowed in from three to six weeks.

Try, Stop Me

There was a bit of a mystery in Cambridge, Mass., some years ago, and Charles Morton, of the Atlantic Monthly, tells how it was solved. One of the town's leading churches boasted a clock with a fine set of chimes that rang out perfectly every hour on the hour. Perfectly, that is, twenty-three hours out of the twenty-four. At midnight, folks noticed that the chimes were ringing thirteen times!

The mechanism was checked and rechecked to no avail. Then one canny inspector noted the church adjoined one of the dormitories of fair Harvard. He established an outpost in the belfry and trained his binoculars on the dormitory windows.

Sure enough, as the first chimes of midnight rang out, a light went on in one of the windows and disclosed a whimsical undergrad-

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"BEATRICE? Beatrice?" Mrs. Ramey asked. Her voice was irritable. Waiting annoyed her extremely. No one should keep her waiting.

"Yes, Mrs. Ramey."

"Thank goodness you're home. I've called every day. Didn't Frances tell you? You certainly were not in a great hurry to come home. I called every day, and no one knew when you were coming back. It isn't like you to run off like that."

"It was extremely good for me for many reasons."

"Very well, my dear. Have your little joke."

"I'm not joking, Mrs. Ramey. 'New York must have been very interesting indeed. Usually you stay only a few days. But, after all, you do have a family, and a home, and . . . and me.'"

No, Beatrice thought, you have me, Mrs. Ramey.

Mrs. Ramey went on speaking rapidly. "You didn't tell me a thing about your friend Libby's moving to the country. Really, Beatrice, your loyalty to that woman and her ohims. Someone who went out to see her said that she had stopped wearing all those jewels. She probably pawned them. The person also said that she was living in some perfectly horrible little house that belongs to an impossibly eccentric woman and that that man—that foreigner—is always there."

"I'm afraid you've been badly misinformed, Mrs. Ramey. Really, it's very different than that."

"You would say that if she were living openly with that man. What's the matter with you?"

"Nothing. I'm quite all right."

"Are you sure you're not keeping something from me? You sound—I've missed you, Beatrice. I've missed you dreadfully."

Beatrice was touched. "Have you, Mrs. Ramey?"

"Of course. I haven't been anywhere, and I've had nothing done for me."

"Oh. What a fool I was to believe for a split second that she had missed me for my own sake!"

and not for what I do for her as her errand girl and chauffeur.

"If you had stayed a day longer I was going to write you to come home, and I'd have felt entirely within my rights to do so. I've never known you to be so selfish. And here I have been literally stuck to this house. You know I won't ride in cabs. I'm afraid of them, and the drivers are all rude and foul-mouthed."

I like cab drivers, Beatrice thought. I always talk to them. Once one told me about his canary. You wouldn't believe that, would you, Mrs. Ramey? NEW YORK—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, a reasonably thriving concern, has had a dubious standing in my eyes since 1944 or 1945. Those were hard years for us 4-Fs, and the New Haven brought home the rigors of war to me sharply and unpleasantly by forcing me to stand on several long trips engaged in by its trains. Once, I remember, I stood all the way from Boston and another time I stood all the way from New Haven. They talked of the hardships of our boys on two Jims and Tarawa. Storming beachheads and walking into flame-throwers. Anyone can storm a beachhead. It takes a game, strong and fit man to stand all the way from Boston. That's more than 200 miles.

Now, however, my heart is softening toward the New Haven. Recently, this bemused railway created what it called a Show Train. Consisting of 10 stainless steel coaches and a couple of new grill cars, the Show Train's duties are to pick up assorted suburbanites from Connecticut way stations, fetch them into Grand Central station in time to arrive at a theater in time for the curtain of a hit musical, and, at evening's end, shepherd all the commuters back aboard and deliver them to their little gray homes in the north. There is, I understand, a flat fee for the whole business. The New Haven, on receipt of this fee, furnishes transportation, food and reasonably good tickets to the show.

The other night, for instance, the package deal included the Ray Bolger show, Where's Charley?, and more than six hundred theater-hungry Connecticut souls were in on it.

THE BIG MOVIE HOUSES on upper Broadway are not too appealing from a standpoint of character. They seem to get mostly tourists and, as we say, loftily in poker circles, ribbon clerks, who have no minds of their own.

The most interesting house I ever have visited is Loew's Sheridan, across the street from St. Vincent's hospital. There, all Randolph Scott movies are booed systematically and vigorously. The audience, as you see, shows remarkable discrimination.

It is in the heart of Greenwich Village, whose inhabitants naturally have no inhibitions—and yet their approval or disapproval is limited to the Hollywood products shown. There is an uptown Manhattan house called the Thalia to which I venture occasionally but timidly. The films all are foreign-made with English titles, and I don't feel I know enough languages to be allowed entry.

The customers here all stand around knowingly after the show is over and they discuss the art of Fritz Lang and Marcel Pagnol as if they knew what they were discussing.

JUST A FEW BLOCKS from Loew's Sheridan is a little "class" house called the Art. The audience there is as different as night from day when compared with the Sheridan.

The pseudo-intellectuals and the ones who are making the world safe for something compose a good segment of the Art's population and the result is that almost any given newsreel subject brings on a storm of applause or jeers.

The other night I went hunting for a revival of Pygmalion and came upon it at the Art. The newsreel which preceded the feature was hilarious.

First, they showed scenes of the picketing at the Waldorf-Astoria, where the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace was holding forth. This was booed and cheered equally, since the Village's components are about equally Red and Tory.

Then came some scenes of Juan Peron, Argentina's strong man, and the booing and cheering increased. The next clip showed another socially significant scene—I lost track of world affairs at this point—and the opposing camps hooted and bellowed at each other across the orchestra even louder.

Finally they showed the running of the Grand National, and when they showed Russian Hero as the winner, the whole thing started up again—until suddenly everyone seemed to realize all at once just how ridiculous it was to be booing or applauding a movie when the actors couldn't hear you.

Somebody started laughing and then somebody else, and the next thing you know, there was everyone in the Art roaring their heads off.

I wish I could believe that the lesson took, but I guess they will be right back there tonight, heckling or clapping and getting ulcers. Not me. I try to survive just in time for Roy Rogers.

Seventy-five years ago—1873—the electric motor, now the chief motivating force of rolling mills, was developed from the dynamo.

The National Statuary Hall, in the capitol at Washington, contains the statue of only one woman—Frances E. Willard of Illinois, noted temperance leader.

Speaker Tells Of Washington

Mrs. E. V. Graves spoke to the Saltcreek Township seniors on the topic "Seniors in Washington D. C." in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones of that community. Mrs. Graves has taken many groups of students to Washington, therefore, she gave many hints and details as to what the group could expect when they travel there on April 24th to spend a few days. She named many points of interest to attend while there and expressed her opinions as to hotels, dress, meals and service.

Dwight Rector Jr. also gave a few remarks about his visit to Washington last week-end.

Following Mrs. Graves' and Rector's remarks, the seniors and guests were served a lunch cafeteria style, from a table centered with a bowl of daffodils and narcissus flanked by lighted tapers.

Those present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Graves, Rec-

400 Pupils Ready For Big Tests

8th Graders Seek State Honors

More than 400 Pickaway County eighth grade students will vie for county and state honors in the annual eighth grade exams to be given Friday.

The exam will consist of a battery of four tests, which are arithmetic, English, American history and science.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of the county school system, said there would be more than 300 county eighth graders participating in the contests.

J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, said there would be 116 participants from the city system.

County students will be separated into six "centers" during the exam, following through with the ruling that a teacher other than the regular eighth grade teacher must administer the tests.

THE CENTERS are: Deer creek, Jackson and Wayne, center one; Monroe and Scioto, center two; Darby and Muhlenberg, center three; Pickaway, Washington and Salter, center four; Ashville, Walnut, South Bloomfield, Madison and Du Vall, center five; and Perry and New Holland, center six.

The test is to be completed in less than two hours, and county certificates of merit will be awarded to the students ranking in the upper 25 percent of each school.

State certificates will be granted to those students who attain a rank in the upper one percent of statewide competition.

Standard Steel Prices Are Seen Holding Steady

CLEVELAND, April 18—Magazine Steel reported today a mounting pressure on established standard steel price schedules, but predicted that standard steel prices will hold at least through midyear.

The national metalworking publication asserted that more premium prices have been adjusted downward but that standard mill quotations have not been affected as yet despite "substantial contraction in buying." The magazine continued:

"Except for the retreat of premium-priced producers to levels more in line with the standard market and sharp reductions on gray market offerings, no significant changes have been affected in listed quotations to date."

"For the most part, consumers are of the opinion standard steel products prices will be next to give way though they do not look for a severe test of strength until midyear."

Steel noted extreme consumer caution in placing orders, with purchasers buying only for definite requirements and becoming increasingly price-conscious.

Man Laughing In Burning Car

DENVER, April 18—Police today investigated the death of a Denver man who sat laughing in a burning car while Easter strollers pleaded with him to save himself.

Roy V. Platz, 57, finally was dragged from the blazing car by neighbors after he had lost consciousness. He died later in Denver General hospital.

Passersby, who called to him to get out of the car, said Platz "just turned around and laughed horribly."

Sheriff Cites Responsibility In Car Mishaps

Emphasizing that it is the individual's responsibility to look out for his own safety in traffic, Charles H. Radcliff, Pickaway County sheriff, reminded motorists and pedestrians that "your life is in your hands."

"No one," he added, "would refuse to save a life if it were within his power. Each individual can and should help prevent injuries and loss of lives in traffic accidents."

When driving the individual should observe the written traffic laws and the unwritten laws of commonsense.

Moreover, it is particularly important to be constantly alert at the wheel and to remember that courtesy and consideration for others is the primary rule of safety.

Drivers, of course, should show every consideration to pedestrians. Persons on foot are more or less at the mercy of motorists when crossing highways or streets.

But pedestrians should also show consideration for drivers. It takes a lot more time and space to stop when driving than when you are walking.

So when you are a pedestrian

Big Burma Aids In Righting Of Upset Truck

A 7,000-pound Miss with the Mills Bros. Circus added another trick to her repertoire Sunday when she put on a "wrecker" act to keep the show on the road.

Big Burma, feature attraction of the motorized show which opened its season here Saturday, was called on to lift one of the trucks from a ditch onto a road after a mishap south of Circleville Sunday morning.

The show pulled out of Circleville at about 8 a. m. Sunday, and shortly afterwards, about 11 miles south of town on Route 23, one of the trucks was involved in a collision which turned it over on its side in the ditch.

Burma, following behind in another truck in the caravan, allowed herself to be harnessed, then took hold of the chain wrapped around the overturned truck and gently heaved it back onto its wheels.

After righting the truck, the massive pachyderm sidled to the rear of the vehicle, and shoved it into the highway.

DRIVER OF the truck, Ronald N. Dunn, 18, of Steubenville, was to have appeared before Chillicothe municipal court Monday on a charge of reckless operation.

The truck, which Dunn had been driving, collided with an auto driven by Harold Roden of Columbus. Roden escaped injury in the mishap, but his passenger, Leana Roden, was treated for lacerations and bruises in Chillicothe hospital.

Both vehicles were damaged "considerably," according to state highway patrolmen investigating the mishap.

Big Burma was to have given her third public performance in the last three days in Chillicothe Monday.

Need Another Tractor?

If you're watching the weeds grow in the corn when the haying can't wait—worrying about planting when there's still more plowing and harrowing—or wishing the manure would haul itself when the big tractor's busy... you need another tractor.

With a Farmall Cub, you can plant, cultivate, or mow 12 acres a day... rake at 3 miles an hour... haul faster than a team. And you can spray, pump, run an elevator, plow snow, saw wood, shell corn, grind feed... a hundred other jobs too small for the big tractor.

Come in and see the Farmall Cub. It may be just what you need.

Work makes wealth—Profits make jobs

WHEN a group of men use their brains, hands and modern machines to build a bridge, a bicycle or a screwdriver, they have created wealth. Wealth is not dollars. Wealth is only a useful, seeable, practical thing that does something for ourselves or a neighbor.

Now when there is a slight gain between what it costs to make an article and what it is sold for, everybody knows it's a profit. Is that bad? The thing is, a profit is always good.

Here's why. A profit must either be spent, reinvested or paid out in taxes. It cannot disappear. If it is spent for other goods, that means more work for somebody else—helps them earn more so they can buy more of what we make. If it is reinvested in the business it is used to finance new machinery or new plants—and that in turn creates more jobs... and helps reduce prices that make our earnings worth more in terms of what we can buy. Profits spent this way always come back with a profit to the workers who help earn them.

Our communist enemies tell us to work less, to produce less, to let the government take everything including the profits. We know why they tell us that. They have been predicting to all the world that the capitalist system will fail. They want to make it fail by undermining the confidence of all of us who benefit by it.

And we can see why a Profit is the greatest protection we American workers have.

400 Pupils Ready For Big Tests

8th Graders Seek State Honors

More than 400 Pickaway County eighth grade students will vie for county and state honors in the annual eighth grade exams to be given Friday.

The exam will consist of a battery of four tests, which are arithmetic, English, American history and science.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of the county school system, said there would be more than 300 county eighth graders participating in the contests.

J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, said there would be 116 participants from the city system.

County students will be separated into six "centers" during the exam, following through with the ruling that a teacher other than the regular eighth grade teacher must administer the tests.

THE CENTERS are: Deer creek, Jackson and Wayne, center one; Monroe and Scioto, center two; Darby and Muhlenberg, center three; Pickaway, Washington and Salt Creek, center four; Ashville, Walnut, South Bloomfield, Madison and Duval, center five; and Perry and New Holland, center six.

The test is to be completed in less than two hours, and county certificates of merit will be awarded to the students ranking in the upper 25 percent of each school.

State certificates will be granted to those students who attain a rank in the upper one percent of statewide competition.

Standard Steel Prices Are Seen Holding Steady

CLEVELAND, April 18—Magazine Steel reported today a mounting pressure on established standard steel price schedules, but predicted that standard steel prices will hold at least through midyear.

The national metalworking publication asserted that more premium prices have been adjusted downward but that standard mill quotations have not been affected as yet despite "substantial contraction in buying." The magazine continued:

"Except for the retreat of premium-priced producers to levels more in line with the standard market and sharp reductions on gray market offerings, no significant changes have been affected in listed quotations to date.

"For the most part, consumers are of the opinion standard steel products prices will be next to give way though they do not look for a severe test of strength until midyear."

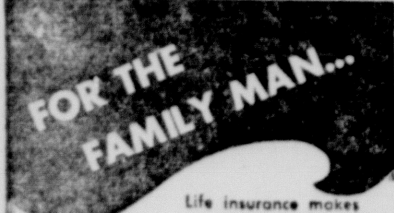

Steel noted extreme consumer caution in placing orders, with purchasers buying only for definite requirements and becoming increasingly price-conscious.

Man Laughing In Burning Car

DENVER, April 18—Police today investigated the death of a Denver man who sat laughing in a burning car while Easter strollers pleaded with him to save himself.

Roy V. Platz, 57, finally was dragged from the blazing car by neighbors after he had lost consciousness. He died later in Denver General hospital.

Passersby, who called to him to get out of the car, said Platz "just turned around and laughed horribly."

Sheriff Cites Responsibility In Car Mishaps

Emphasizing that it is the individual's responsibility to look out for his own safety in traffic, Charles H. Radcliff, Pickaway County sheriff, reminded motorists and pedestrians that "your life is in your hands."

"No one," he added, "would refuse to save a life if it were within his power. Each individual can and should help prevent injuries and loss of lives in traffic accidents."

When driving the individual should observe the written traffic laws and the unwritten laws of commonsense.

Moreover, it is particularly important to be constantly alert at the wheel and to remember that courtesy and consideration for others is the primary rule of safety.

Drivers, of course, should show every consideration to pedestrians. Persons on foot are more or less at the mercy of motorists when crossing highways or streets.

But pedestrians should also show consideration for drivers. It takes a lot more time and space to stop when driving than when you are walking.

So when you are a pedestrian

Bellamy Likes Being Shot Every Night At 11:08

NEW YORK, April 18—Detective Jim McLeod, the toughest cop on Broadway, gets himself killed dead as a doornail at 11:08 p. m. every day except Sunday on the stage of the Hudson theatre.

But despite McLeod's boisterous demise in "Detective Story," a hit play which will probably run as indefinitely as a dog-track rabbit, the detective's perpetrator, one Ralph Bellamy, can't for the life of him understand that "a policeman's lot is not a happy one."

Bellamy, professionally speaking, has never been happier in his whole stage-struck life than he is as Detective McLeod who gets his fatal dose of lead poisoning just before the final curtain.

At 44, Bellamy has the dramatic hit of his lifetime in his pocket, with both critics and audiences tossing their cheques in the air, and he—Bellamy—ain't mad at nobody.

As he sat in the offices of the Hudson theatre, Bellamy dis-

'Numbers King'

Denies Any Idea Of Home Bombing

XENIA, April 18—The home of Earl Artis, believed by police to be Xenia's "numbers king," had a big hole in the front wall today as the result of a bomb thrown from a passing car.

Police said the bomb, probably made of nitroglycerin or dynamite, was heaved early Easter Sunday as part of a current numbers war.

No one was injured, but they said any passerby would have been killed by the blast, which ripped off the steps, tore a hole in the front wall and shattered windows in Artis' house and four others across the street.

Artis' young son and a neighbor's child were sleeping in a front bedroom immediately over the bombed spot.

The alleged numbers operator denied any knowledge of who threw the explosive, claiming he had received no threats.

Artis was arrested only once, in 1938, and was acquitted in Xenia municipal court.

School Chief's

Backers Protest Dismissal Move

TOLEDO, April 18 — Supporters of School Supt. R. H. Vanausdale of nearby Monclova were to protest the school official's dismissal at a mass meeting tonight in Monclova high school gymnasium.

Willard J. Paxton of neighbouring Waterville, who will preside at the meeting, reported yesterday that a majority of the residents of the Monclova district have signed a petition urging the township school board to rehire Vanausdale.

School board officials have refused to state their reason for dismissing Vanausdale on the grounds that such action would violate a state law. Board Member George H. Lewis said the board would let Vanausdale decide whether to state publicly the reasons.

Vanausdale said that he will not reveal his plans in regard to the dismissal until after the citizens meeting tonight.

Rust Damage

To Be Light In '49 Wheat Crop

COLUMBUS, April 18—The Southwestern United States, which suffered heavy leaf-rust damage to hard wheat crops in 1945, will be comparatively free of the blight this year.

That is the prediction of Dr. K. Starr Chester, head of agricultural research at Batelle Memorial Institute here.

Dr. Chester said today that his analysis of conditions in the area indicates little more than a normal amount of the fungus this year. Only three to five percent of the main crop will be harmed.

He warned, however, that the mild winter in the east might bring on a severe attack of the rust.

Dr. Chester bases his studies on an examination of rust spores in Oklahoma. The scientist says such studies give a forecast for the entire hard winter wheat belt.

TERMITES!!

It is estimated that these pests cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually.

Each termite colony has a king and queen, a nursery, soldiers and thousands and thousands of workers who carry on their unceasing labor of destruction—DAY AND NIGHT—working in darkness and in SECRET.

Termite colonies soon become overpopulated, as the queen lays THOUSANDS of eggs daily. Each year reproductive termites (sometimes called "flying ants") appear in the open. These are not the destructive termites, who remain in the old colony carrying on their work of destruction. These "swarmers" are simply the OVERFLOW, "pioneers" seeking "new worlds to conquer. In this way NEW colonies are started. Their appearance on or near your property is a definite indication that there is an ESTABLISHED and overpopulated colony nearby and is also an assurance that if you DON'T have them you soon WILL have. The presence of swarmers is a WARNING to have your property inspected by a competent exterminator AT ONCE.

Many homes and buildings in this area are infested and are being seriously damaged by these pests, with little indication of their presence until their work is far advanced.

A new booklet on termites—their origin—habits—destruction—how detected and control methods is yours for the asking. Call at our store and get your copy TODAY.

We are local representatives of a termite control company using chemicals and methods approved by various universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture guaranteeing immediate extermination and your home immune from infestation for years to come.

Is your home or building being damaged by termites NOW?? Why not make SURE. For free inspection by a specialist—without obligation or cost—

Bellamy, professionally speaking, has never been happier in his whole stage-struck life than he is as Detective McLeod who gets his fatal dose of lead poisoning just before the final curtain.

At 44, Bellamy has the dramatic hit of his lifetime in his pocket, with both critics and audiences tossing their champagne in the air, and he—Bellamy—ain't mad at nobody.

As he sat in the offices of the Hudson theatre, Bellamy discussed many things, including the fact that he will eat regularly until June, 1950. He has just signed a contract to stick with the play for the next 14 months.

BELLAMY, long a star of stage and screen, is a six-footer with shoulders like a wrestler, who gives no evidences of recent undernourishment. He has been living high on the hog for a good many years, but he remembers as yesterday when he existed in a Greenwich Village basement and didn't know where his next crust was coming from.

"Was I broke!" exclaimed Bellamy, with the expensive sun tan on his handsome face with its stubborn, determined jaw.

He was broke as a camel's back because of the sudden decrease of stock, which expired almost without warning, through a complication of causes including the depression, talking pictures and radio.

Until the evaporation of theatrical stock companies from the American scene, Bellamy had played with his own company annually in Des Moines, Nashville and Evanston.

"It was a good life," said Bellamy, who is now tasting for the first time the sensational sweets of great personal success on Broadway. In those days in stock he tasted success, too, he added, and it was usually sweet. Ladies who came to see him week after week in Des Moines or Nashville, sent pies and cakes, cookies and homemade candies in cascades across the footlights to their matinee idol.

"There was some awfully good cooks in Des Moines," he said, rather dreamily, as he closed his electric blue eyes the better—probably—to conjure up that vision of angel food cakes.

Apparently, New York audiences can't cook. At least, Bellamy hasn't received a single pie or batch of fudge in the years he has played on Broadway.

TERMITES!!

It is estimated that these pests cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually.

Each termite colony has a king and queen, a nursery, soldiers and thousands and thousands of workers who carry on their unceasing labor of destruction—DAY AND NIGHT—working in darkness and in SECRET.

Termite colonies soon become overpopulated, as the queen lays THOUSANDS of eggs daily. Each year reproductive termites (sometimes called "flying ants") appear in the open. These are not the destructive termites, who remain in the old colony carrying on their work of destruction. These "swarmers" are simply the OVERFLOW, "pioneers" seeking "new worlds to conquer. In this way NEW colonies are started. Their appearance on or near your property is a definite indication that there is an ESTABLISHED and overpopulated colony nearby and is also an assurance that if you DON'T have them you soon WILL have. The presence of swarmers is a WARNING to have your property inspected by a competent exterminator AT ONCE.

Many homes and buildings in this area are infested and are being seriously damaged by these pests, with little indication of their presence until their work is far advanced.

A new booklet on termites—their origin—habits—destruction—how detected and control methods is yours for the asking. Call at our store and get your copy TODAY.

We are local representatives of a termite control company using chemicals and methods approved by various universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture guaranteeing immediate extermination and your home immune from infestation for years to come.

Is your home or building being damaged by termites NOW?? Why not make SURE. For free inspection by a specialist—without obligation or cost—

A BANK for FARMERS

We are proud of the fact that this bank numbers so many farmers among its valued customers, as agriculture is a very important industry in our community. Farmers deposit with us, in checking and savings accounts, and are also customers in every other department of the bank, including loans of many kinds. If YOUR farm operation requires credit to assure a more profitable season ahead, come in and talk it over with our officers.

Total Of $315 In Traffic Fines

Easter Sunday was a busy court day for Mayor Thurman I. Miller, who fined traffic violators a total of $315.

James Bowsher, 31, of Columbus was fined $150 and costs and Avery O. Heeter, 34, of Clarksville, $100 and costs.

They were accused of driving autos on U. S. Route 23 while under the influence of alcohol. Heeter was fined an additional $10 and costs for failure to produce a driver's license.

George Burton of Akron was fined $20 and costs for driving on the same highway Saturday night without lights.

Hattie L. Smith of York street was fined $10 and costs. She was accused of permitting an unlicensed driver to operate her auto.

Richard Dean of Columbus was fined $25 and costs for failing to yield half the highway while driving on the Stoutsville Pike.

Arrests were made by State Highway Patrolmen C. E. Wells and Charles Waters.

Student Lawyers Ready To Try Baseball Case

EVANSTON, Ill., April 18—The case of Jose Smith vs. the New York Gimmicks, the National League, and the commissioner of baseball will be heard here tomorrow coincident to the grand opening of the 1949 major league season.

You remember Smith. Having played the entire 1945 season as an outfielder with the Gimmicks, he subsequently jumped to the Mexican League after the Gimmicks had refused to meet the salary offered him by the outlaw Mexican circuit.

Upon the virtual failure of the Mexican League, Smith applied for reinstatement with the Gimmicks for the 1947 season. He was refused on the ground that the commissioner of baseball had slapped a five-year suspension from organized ball on all players who had jumped to Mexico.

Simultaneously, under the reserve clause, the Gimmicks refused to grant Jose's release. He could not get a job with any other team in the majors or the minors; threat of reprisal from organized ball also cut short any ventures he could have made into the semi-pro field.

SO JOSE SUED. He filed suit for $100,000 damages, claiming that the Gimmicks, the National League, and the commissioner were in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, by monopolizing the business of baseball in the United States.

Such business, Jose's attorneys maintained, is interstate commerce because of the sale of advertising by ball clubs to radio and television, which cross state lines and thus come under federal laws.

Said the Gimmicks in return: 1. Neither commerce nor interstate commerce is involved either in the baseball industry or in the alleged restraints upon Jose. 2. The acts, contracts, and agreements involved do not constitute violations of the Sherman act.

3. The practices complained of are of long standing and are essential to the maintenance of stability and equality in baseball.

4. Such practices have demonstrably provided the American public with an intensely competitive and balanced sport, at the same time protecting players from unstable employment conditions.

Who's right? The answer will be forthcoming tomorrow evening, with the decision rendered in the "moot court" of the Northwestern university law school in Evanston.

Four "attorneys," all students in the law school, and three judges, all prominent Northwestern alumni, will decide the case. Coincidental is not a good word to describe any similarity between the mythical Gimmicks and their mythical Mr. Smith, and the real-life New York Giants and their really-true Dan Gardella.

Monmouth Sets Lush Schedule

OCEANPORT, N. J., April 18—The Monmouth Park Jockey Club today announced a program of 15 stake races, covering $195,000 in added money, to be distributed during the coming Summer meeting, June 20 to Aug. 10.

This is the richest handicap schedule in the modern history of the Monmouth track. The most pretentious races on the calendar are the $25,000 Monmouth Handicap and the $25,000 Choate Stakes.

Quad Track Meet Is Due Tuesday

A quadrangular track meet in Pickaway Township school Tuesday will open the county interschool track season.

The Pickaway Townshippers will be host to New Holland, Monroe and Williamsport in the opener, the athletes prepping for the all-county meet to be held in Pickaway Fairgrounds May 6.

The quadrangular event will begin at about 12:30 p. m., according to Pickaway Coach Bob Seward.

Junior Legion Baseball Team Gets '49 Call

Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team hopefuls are to attend the first organizational meeting of the team at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the local Legion home.

James P. Shea, athletic director for the post, said that all Pickaway County boys under 17 years of age who wish to play Junior Legion ball this season should attend the Thursday meet.

The local team plans to open its season at home on May 30, according to Shea, and probably will be entered into a nine-team, 7th district conference league.

Shea said he believes this year's team will be outstanding, with two of last year's pitchers eligible this year and three good hitters planning to return.

The veteran moundmen who will return are David Kraft of Ashville and Dudley Morris of Circleville, while Abe Rihl, John Valentine and Herb Pettibone are expected to hold up the batting portion of the squad.

Thursday's organizational meet will be conducted by Coaches Claude Kraft and Ralph Roby Jr., and Managers Ernest Ankrom and Leonard Coffland.

Maple Leafs Win Cup Again

TORONTO, Ont., April 18—The Toronto Maple Leafs were scattered to their homes today with $36,000 in prize money from the Stanley Cup playoffs for world hockey supremacy.

The Leafs, who finished a poor fourth during the regular National Hockey League season, became the first team in the league's history to win the cup three seasons straight when they downed Detroit 3 to 1 Saturday night.

This marked Toronto's fourth straight win over the Red Wings, duplicating the Leafs feat of last year against the same team.

Spring Athletic Program Set To Resume Tuesday

Circleville high school baseballers, golfers and tracksters will resume competition Tuesday following a two-day Easter vacation.

The CHS baseball team will be looking for its second win in three attempts Tuesday when it plays host to Dublin in Ted Levins Park. So far, the locals have won one, lost one and had one called because of darkness.

The Tuesday game is slated for about 4 p. m.

Tiger golfers will travel to Lancaster Tuesday for a shot at their second win in three starts so far this season also, scheduled to meet the host Lancaster school and Chillicothe in a triangular match.

The CHS'ers copied their first triangular with the same two teams here in the season opener, but followed it up with a loss to Columbus North. The match will begin at about 2:30 p. m.

Circleville cindermen will be looking for their first win of the season Tuesday when they also travel to Lancaster. The Tiger thinclads have engaged in only one meet so far this season, dropping it by about 20 points at Westerville.

The Tuesday meet will begin at about 2:30 p. m.

Louis To Talk Tickets, Video

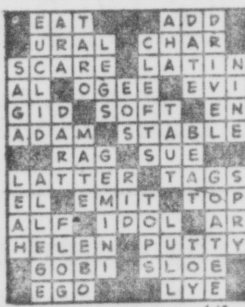

CHICAGO, April 18—Ticket prices and television contracts for the Ezzard Charles-Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight June 22 are slated to be drawn up here tomorrow at a meeting of Promoters Joe Louis, Arthur Wirtz and James Norris.

The three directors of the new International Boxing Club will meet in their Chicago Stadium headquarters after examining the Comiskey Park site. They will also discuss training sites for the two fighters. The first show under IBC promotion will take place in Detroit April 27.

Rain And Snow Predicted For Opening Games

Rain and—in one case—snow were predicted for a majority of the major league baseball openers.

The snow forecast was made in Boston, where the Braves were to entertain the Philadelphia Phils Monday. Possible showers are predicted in Detroit, Cincinnati and the New York City area.

Following is the schedule, with the probable pitchers and their 1948 records:

MONDAY
National League
Philadelphia at Boston—Ken Heintzelman (6-11) vs. Johnny Sain (24-15).

American League
Philadelphia at Washington—Dick Fowler (15-8) vs. Rae Scarborough (15-8).

TUESDAY
National League
Pittsburgh at Chicago—Murry Dickson (12-16) vs. Dutch Leonard (12-17).

New York at Brooklyn—Larry Jansen (18-12) vs. Joe Hatten (13-10).

St. Louis at Cincinnati—Howie Pollet (13-8) vs. Ken Raffensberger (11-12).

Junior Legion Baseball Team Gets '49 Call

Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team hopefuls are to attend the first organizational meeting of the team at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the local Legion home.

James P. Shea, athletic director for the post, said that all Pickaway County boys under 17 years of age who wish to play Junior Legion ball this season should attend the Thursday meet.

The local team plans to open its season at home on May 30, according to Shea, and probably will be entered into a nine-team, 7th district conference league.

Shea said he believes this year's team will be outstanding, with two of last year's pitchers eligible this year and three good hitters planning to return.

The veteran moundsmen who will return are David Kraft of Ashville and Dudley Morris of Circleville, while Abe Rihl, John Valentine and Herb Pettibone are expected to hold up the batting portion of the squad.

Thursday's organizational meet will be conducted by Coaches Claude Kraft and Ralph Roby Jr., and Managers Ernest Ankrom and Leonard Coffland.

Louis To Talk Tickets, Video

CHICAGO, April 18—Ticket prices and television contracts for the Ezzard Charles-Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight June 22 are slated to be drawn up here tomorrow at a meeting of Promoters Joe Louis, Arthur Wirtz and James Norris.

The three directors of the new International Boxing Club will meet in their Chicago Stadium headquarters after examining the Comiskey Park site. They will also discuss training sites for the two fighters. The first show under IBC promotion will take place in Detroit April 27.

Coincidental is not a good word to describe any similarity between the mythical Gimmicks and their mythical Mr. Smith, and the real-life New York Giants and their really-truly Dan Gardella.

Monmouth Sets Lush Schedule
OCEANPORT, N. J., April 18—The Monmouth Park Jockey Club today announced a program of 15 stake races, covering $195,000 in added money, to be distributed during the coming Summer meeting, June 20 to Aug. 10.

This is the richest handicap schedule in the modern history of the Monmouth track. The most pretentious races on the calendar are the $25,000 Monmouth Handicap and the $25,000 Choite Stakes.

Quad Track Meet Is Due Tuesday

A quadrangular track meet in Pickaway Township school Tuesday will open the county interschool track season.

The Pickaway Townshippers will be host to New Holland, Monroe and Williamsport in the opener, the athletes prepping for the all-county meet to be held in Pickaway Fairgrounds May 6.

The quadrangular event will begin at about 12:30 p. m., according to Pickaway Coach Bob Seward.

Maple Leafs Win Cup Again

TORONTO, Ont., April 18—The Toronto Maple Leafs were scattered to their homes today with $56,000 in prize money from the Stanley Cup playoffs for world hockey supremacy.

The Leafs, who finished a poor fourth during the regular National Hockey League season, became the first team in the league's history to win the cup three seasons straight when they downed Detroit 3 to 1 Saturday night.

This marked Toronto's fourth straight win over the Red Wings, duplicating the Leafs feat of last year against the same team.

Spring Athletic Program Set To Resume Tuesday

Circleville high school baseballers, golfers and tracksters will resume competition Tuesday following a two-day Easter vacation.

The CHS baseball team will be looking for its second win in three attempts Tuesday when it plays host to Dublin in Ted Lewis Park. So far, the locals have won one, lost one and had one called because of darkness.

The Tuesday game is slated for about 4 p. m.

Tiger golfers will travel to Lancaster Tuesday for a shot at their second win in three starts so far this season, also scheduled to meet the host Lancaster school and Chillicothe in a triangular match.

The CHS'ers copped their first triangular with the same two teams here in the season opener, but followed it up with a loss to Columbus North. The match will begin at about 2:30 p. m.

Circleville cindersmen will be looking for their first win of the season Tuesday when they also travel to Lancaster. The Tiger thinclads have engaged in only one meet so far this season, dropping it by about 20 points at Westerville.

The Tuesday meet will begin at about 2:30 p. m.

Despite Winterish Chill, Circus Opening Is Success

Show Off On Its Long Road Tour

Estimated $30,000 Spent In Stay Here

Despite the chilly and very un-Springlike weather, the premier performance of the Mills Bros. Circus here Saturday was a definite success.

Overcoats and a few blankets were in vogue at both afternoon and evening performances. Chilled fingers slowed some of the acts, but in the main the performances were excellent considering the fact they were the first of the season.

That Saturday snow did not bother the veteran of the circus, the Rev. Doc Waddell, only full-time circus preacher in the nation.

He recalled that on June 20, 1908, in Salt Lake City, there was so much snow that the circus he was with had to haul down its big-top and call off all performances.

Considering the weather, there was a good turnout for both afternoon and evening performances.

Perhaps the best ovation was given Les Rosettis, a French team of high ladder artists. The feminine member of the team brought ohs and ahs from the gallery as she executed a double dislocation of her shoulders while "skinning the cat" twice without moving her hands from a trapeze bar.

Also well received was the Valenciano Family, a Scandinavian crew of tumblers, ball balancers and jugglers. And, of course, Big Burma, the elephant, pulled down her usual big applause in the finale.

Following the matinee, about 200 guests of the Mills Bros. attended a press banquet in Circleville Memorial Hall. Attending were circus fans and sponsors during the coming tour. They came from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Monday, Pickaway Fairgrounds showed little evidence that a three-ring circus had played there or even wintered there. A few piles of rubbish were visible but circus officials had made arrangements for a general cleanup.

Since November, Brothers Jack and Jake Mills estimated a total of $30,000 has been spent by the circus in the Circleville area. Expenditures elsewhere in the state probably run another $15,000, said Jake.

FOR REGULAR Winter quarters upkeep, food purchases alone were king-sized: 150 tons of hay from farmers through the county, amounts of oats, bran and horse meat, 50 tons of coal, and even medicine for horses and dogs. Plus foodstuff for the cookhouse which fed the quarters crew throughout the winter. Not to mention recent purchases stocking the traveling hotel for the start of the road tour.

For the workshops, there were purchases of gallons of paint, lumber, rope, tent stakes and poles, bolts, locks, catches and 101 kinds of hardware and tools. In the mechanical department, there were the usual gas and oil expenditures, plus tires, batteries and truck and auto parts. Also, to accommodate this year's enlarged force, half a dozen new buses have been bought in the state, along with several trucks. Services of welders and body men have been employed to convert the buses into sleepers and turn trucks into circus vans.

Two new horses, purchased in Pickaway County, also have been added over the winter.

The Mills brothers thanked Circleville and area business firms and residents Friday for courtesy and cooperation shown the show.

"We are grateful to all who have made our stay so pleasant," civic and county officials, the Fair Board, and to be brief, all of Circleville," said Jack, Jake and Harry.

"We think we have by far the outstanding show of our careers this year and we sincerely hope everyone thoroughly enjoys it as much as we expect they will."

County Roads To Get Repairs During Spring

Those pot-holes and ruts in Pickaway County's roadways are to be repaired and filled in the near future, according to the county engineer's office.

Henry McCrady, county engineer, said bids for the road-patching work are to be opened by the county commissioners at 1:30 p. m. on May 2.

McCrady said he did not definitely know how much road work would be necessary this Spring, but that according to the specifications set up by his office cost of the work would run less than $35,000.

The bids are to be let on a purchase of materials plan. That is, the bidding contractors will agree to purchase their repair materials for a specified unit price, the unit price to cover the cost of laying the materials.

The bids are to be made on standard bid sheets available in McCrady's office. The bid sheets contain the specified purchase price of the material. No beginning date for the repair has been determined.

17 Jap Firemen Hurt; Too Much Firewater Noted

TOKYO, April 18 — Seventeen Japanese firemen with too much firewater inside of them were injured today when their firetruck overturned.

Authorities said all the smoke eaters in the vehicle had been imbibing an excess of something that wasn't smoke.

The 17 celebrants belong to the fire department of Konosu, a town on the outskirts of Tokyo.

They took the firetruck out of the station on the pretext of going for a road test.

Instead, they drove into Tokyo to view the cherry blossoms. To enhance the beauty of the scene they downed large quantities of sake, rice wine.

The accident happened as they were speeding back to Konosu. Officials said all of them, including the driver, were drunk.
